"Transit camps for new arrivals have been transformed into work villages," he reported. "Immigrants are finding jobs for themselves with little reliance on public works and other aids. Moreover, many of them have established a number of small workshops. Thus, Jewish Agency's expenditures for relief functions have been cut to less than one-third of what they were nine months ago." This enables the Jewish Agency to concentrate its funds on productive enterprises. Israel's foreign exchange position is still critical. The country has maintained itself during the past nine months only through $50,000,000 in loans negotiated with European countries, large gifts of U. S. surplus commodities and increased austerity.

Says No Theocratic Rule Exists In Israel

Moshe Shapiro, Israeli Minister of Interior, Health and Immigration, said in New York that all religious parties were strongly opposed to any theocratic tendencies in his country. The Israeli official is the leader of the religious bloc in the Israeli Parliament as well as head of the Hapoel Hamizrachi, the religious-labor party. He is the first of several Israeli cabinet ministers who are scheduled to arrive in the near future to participate in the United Jewish Appeal campaign and the forthcoming flotation of the Israeli bond issue for $500,000,000.

Touching on the religious question, Mr. Shapiro asserted that parents had the right to decide whether their children should get a religious or non-religious education. He said that certain parties in Israel insisted on children being enrolled in non-religious schools.

In predicting a large vote for the religious parties at the next general elections in Israel sometime this summer, Mr. Shapiro said that since the last elections, held two and one-half years ago, the country has received about 300,000 newcomers. Of this latter figure, he said, about 60 per cent are religious Jews.

Turning to the subject of immigration, the Israeli official pointed out that his country at present was receiving 20,000 immigrants every month and that this influx has presented economic problems. He appealed for United States Government grants-in-aid, as well as widespread support of the United Jewish Appeal campaign and the Israeli bond issue which will be opened on May 1, under the direction of the American Financial

Passover Is National Holiday In Israel

Leavened foods, such as bread, noodles, macaroni and beer, were cleared from grocery shelves when Israel began the observance of the Jewish feast of the Passover. For the duration of the seven-day festival foods prohibited during Passover by Mosaic law were obtainable only in Arab neighborhoods and shops catering to foreign diplomats and visitors.

Passover, which commemorates the Exodus and has been a religious festival since the times of Moses, the Law Giver, in modern Israel is celebrated to a great extent as a national holiday of liberation.

The devout observed the traditional feast, eating unleavened bread and bitter herbs to commemorate the sufferings of Jews in Egypt and reciting the 3,000-year-old Passover story. But the manner of the observance varied, and the Marxist communal settlements edited and modernized the traditional Passover liturgy.

Preparations for the festival were an ordeal for housewives. They spent hours in queues for meager rations of meat, fish, eggs, potatoes, unleavened bread and vegetables. Thousands of families there received parcels of food from relatives and friends in the United States, and their problems were eased greatly.

Religious women had the task of scouring homes to remove crumbs of the prohibited leavened foods, and replace ordinary dishes and kitchenware with Passover utensils.

Thousands of tourists were in the country for the festival and ... to Jeru... ... emergency powers to evict residents from hotels to provide accommodations for tourists. However, many could not find hotel rooms and were accommodated in private homes.

Aided Three Generations Of Crippled

Mrs. Rose Baran, of 2345 Broadway, founder of the New York Philanthropic League of the United Order of True Sisters, which aids crippled children, died in French Hospital at the age of 82. Mrs. Baran, widow of Dr. Julius Baran, physician, who died in 1927, was born in Chicago, Ill.

In 1911 a school teacher, who was a patient of Dr. Baran, told Mrs. Baran that 102 physically handicapped school children had arrived at P. S. 27, on East Forty-second Street, with only stale rolls for lunch. Mrs. Baran, aided by the United Order of True Sisters, Inc., began preparing hot lunches for the children and did so until the Board of Education took over the work two years later. The League, sponsored by the New York City lodges of the order, grew out of this task.

During fourteen years as League president, Mrs. Baran devoted herself to fund-raising for helping crippled children by staging concerts and recitals. She remained active in the work of the League until her last illness. She had ascribed her longevity to her interest in "trying to help others." She once estimated that she helped three generations of handicapped children. "There just isn't time to think about one's age," she said.

The League's work progressed from its headquarters at 150 West Eighty-fifth Street. It supported two therapeutically equipped school-rooms at P. S. 90 and James Monroe High School. The League sends many crippled children to its summer camp at Spring Valley, N. Y.

Mrs. Baran would recite for the children her own verse and other poems. During the second World War she served with a Red Cross entertainment unit, reciting for soldiers in Miami, Florida. Last year she received a citation from the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations for her help to crippled children.

Surviving are a son, Harold P. Baran; two daughters, Mrs. Bertha Ladenburger and Mrs. George Wise, and a brother, Jules Goldstein, of Providence, R. I.

A.J.C. SEEKS ABOLITION OF U.S. QUOTA SYSTEM

The American Jewish Congress is demanding the abolition of the 1924 national origins quota system which allocated immigration visas according to place of birth. The organization also calls for the immediate enactment of a new immigration law which would permit the distribution of visas on a "first come, first served" basis, without differentiation as to race or place of birth.

Testifying before a joint committee on immigration of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives in Washington, Will Maslow, on behalf of the American Jewish Congress, denounced the present immigration system as basically racialist. The national origins formula, Mr. Maslow said, "was no legislative accident, but was deliberately designed to limit the number of immigrants from South and East Europe and is a compound of bigotry and ignorance".

Urging the rejection of general immigration Bills introduced by Senator McCarran, of Nevada, and Congressman Walter, of Pennsylvania, because they continue to use the national origins formula, the American Jewish Congress representative asserted that adoption of these Bills "would reveal that we have learned nothing in one quarter of a century, that our prejudices have remained untarnished by the light of knowledge".

Was Active At 100; Gave Firm To Workers

... Levy, ... of the Model Brassiere Company, died in New York at the age of 100 in his home at 320 West End Avenue. Born November 22, 1850, in Carlsbad, Austria, Mr. Levy came to America in his early youth. He founded his company and remained active as its president until he retired on his eightieth birthday in 1930 and turned the business over to his employees, who operate it at 368 Fifth Avenue.

Mr. Levy, in an interview on his last birthday, told reporters that "you have your ups and downs, but if you don't worry about them you have a happy life." He recalled that he had tried many businesses, some doing well and others failing. At the age of 16, Mr. Levy came to the United States without money and began his career driving a horse and wagon.

Until his death he continued to read without glasses, play pinochle with his friends and fish for bass during the summer season near his country home at Stamford, N. Y. When he was 73 he flew from Paris to London, and at 87 he flew from St. Petersburg, Florida, to the Keys to engage in his avocation of fishing. At 95, while fishing in a

U.S. Bnai Brith Women Raised Million Last Year

The Bnai Brith Women's Supreme Council annual meeting, in Washington, D. C., heard the announcement that $1,000,000 had been raised in the last year by the organization's 600 chapters for philanthropic, educational religious and relief activities. Mrs. Hyman C. Weisman, of St. Louis, Council president, addressing a dinner in the Shoreham Hotel, said 600 chapters and an "all time high membership" had brought about the success of various fund-raising campaigns conducted by the women's branch of the 107-year-old Jewish service organizations.

Included in the total amount raised, Mrs. Weisman added, was the greater part of a $100,000 quota assumed by the women's groups to construct Bnai Brith children's home in Israel. The home is to replace a shelter severely damaged by bombing during the Israel-Arab fighting. Another $400,000 was raised for American youth services, including the Bnai Brith Youth Organization, a national young people's social and cultural group.

The women also raised funds for direct aid to Israel and made domestic philanthropic grants to the American Red Cross, cancer

Congress House Is Dedicated To Father By Daughter

Ceremonies marked by a message from President Truman paying tribute to the late Stephen S. Wise were held to dedicate the new Stephen S. Wise Congress House as headquarters of the American and World Jewish Congresses, 15 East Eighty-fourth Street, New York.

More than 2,000 persons, including Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, attended the dedication ceremonies at the Park Avenue Synagogue, 50 East Eighty-seventh Street, and, later, at the new headquarters. Dedication of the house took place just four days before the second anniversary of Dr. Wise's death.

The religious and community leader was one of the founders of the Zionist Organization of America, the American Jewish Congress and the World Jewish Congress. He was president of the latter organizations at the time of his death.

President Truman said in his message that the new house will serve as an "enduring memorial to one of the great Americans of our generation." Few persons, the President said, have symbolized the highest ideals of America more fully than Dr. Wise. "It is my earnest prayer that the Stephen Wise Congress House will prove worthy of the distinguished and honored name it bears."

Mayor Impellitteri, who spoke at the ceremony at the Park Avenue Synagogue, said that Dr. Wise's record of public service has been equaled by few Americans. The nation, he said, has more need than ever of "the ideals and examples of Stephen Wise."

Justice Justine Wise Polier, of Domestic Relations Court, daughter of Dr. Wise, dedicated the six-story building to her father and called the work of the two Congresses which will occupy it a "living memorial" to Dr. Wise's devotion to the Jewish and American ideal of democracy, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Other speakers were the Marchioness of Reading, president of the British section of the World Jewish Congress; Dr. Alvin Johnson, president emeritus of the New School for Social Research; Dr. Channing Tobias, director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund; Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the Western Hemisphere Executive of the W. J. C., and Dr. Arieh Tartakower, chairman of the Israel Executive of W. J. C.

Rabbi Irving Miller, president of the American Jewish Congress, presided at the ceremonies. Dr. Joachim Prinz, rabbi of Temple Beth Abraham, of Newark, N. J., and a vice-president of the American Jewish Congress, gave the invocation. Rabbi Simon Noveck, of the Park Avenue Synagogue, gave the benediction.

The house, which will serve as a permanent headquarters of the two organizations, was the former residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid.

Farmer Gives Wheat To Consulate Of India

Nathan George Horwitt, fifty-three, a dairy farmer from Lenox, Mass., drove a pick-up truck to the Indian Consulate, 3 East Sixty-fourth Street, New York, and unloaded twelve 100-pound sacks of wheat into the consulate lobby. Mr. Horwitt said that he hoped this gesture might start a popular movement among farmers to collect grain for shipment to India or, more important, help to induce passage of the resolution before Congress to send 2,000,000 tons of wheat to the famine-stricken provinces there, says the New York Herald Tribune.

R. R. Sakesena, Consul General of India, said the gesture was the first of its kind toward relieving his country's famine, and added, as far as future donations were concerned, "we shall welcome any assistance we can get." The sacks will be forwarded to India, he said, by the first ship of the Scindia Line to leave port.

Mr. Horwitt, who lives on Dean Hill Road in Lenox, said he had bought six sacks of wheat from Donald R. Tench, owner of the Berkshire Feed and Farmers Supply Company, in Pittsfield, Mass., and that Mr. Tench had decided to give an equal amount.

CLASS IN COOKERY

three eggs
three-quarters cup flour
one cup milk
one-half teaspoon salt

Beat eggs, add salt, flour, and milk gradually to form a smooth batter. Heat small skillet and grease sparingly with butter; drop small amount of batter in (about two tablespoons) and shake pan until it is well-covered. When set, turn out on floured board, cooked side up. Fill with cottage cheese mixture, and fold.

Cottage Cheese Filling

one and one-half cups crushed pineapple, well-drained
salt to taste
butter for frying
one pound cottage cheese
about one tablespoon sugar

Mash cottage cheese well, add slightly beaten egg, salt, and sugar. Mix in pineapple. Put into each pancake; roll it up, and fry in butter. These blintzes may be baked in the oven instead of fried. This recipe makes about one dozen good-sized blintzes.

Mrs. B. Brenner,
4517 Harvard Avenue, Montreal.

BUTTERSCOTCH ICEBOX COOKIES

one and one-third cups brown sugar
one-half teaspoon baking soda
one-half teaspoon salt
one-half teaspoon cinnamon
two egg yolks
one-half pound butter
three cups flour
one-half teaspoon cream of tartar
one-half cup chopped nuts

Cream butter and add sugar, then slightly beaten egg yolks. Sift cinnamon, salt, and soda with flour, then combine and mix altogether with or without nuts. Chill dough slightly, for about fifteen minutes, and form into long rolls, about two inches in diameter, then wrap in wax paper and place in refrigerator over night. Slice rolls about one-eighth of an inch thick for each cookie, and bake in hot oven, 400 to 425 degrees, for about ten to fifteen minutes.

N.Y. Teachers Get 8,000 Books For Israel

Teachers in New York City schools have contributed 8,000 books on teacher training and other pedagogical problems in the fields of education, fine arts, literature, psychology and sciences to be sent to Israel for the advancement of education there. With the permission of the New York City Board of Education the book collection has been carried on since last December by the Jewish Teachers Community Chest, the Jewish Teachers Association and the American Fund for Israel Institutions.

The American Fund, which supports cultural, educational and social warfare institutions in Israel, is the American representative of the newly formed Central Pedagogical Library in Tel Aviv, which will be custodian of the educational library.

Once the books arrive in Israel they will be placed "on loan" and sent to teachers in all Israeli schools. The books will have a two-fold effect, according to Edward A. Norman, president of the American Fund. They will improve and standardize teaching methods in Israel, now widely divergent, because of the variety of educational backgrounds of the teachers; and they will help to show the American concept of democracy and education in Israel, says the New York [illegible].

Dr. Charles G. Eichel, president of the Jewish Teachers Community Chest and chairman of the book collection campaign, appealed to teachers to contribute a total of 25,000 volumes. He emphasized that there should be several copies of each title since the books will be sent to widely scattered communities.

"The rapid growth and development of the State of Israel has created many difficult and perplexing problems," he said. "Among these, the problem of educating children and adults from every clime and corner is the most challenging. To us as teachers it is of deep significance and immediate the need for trained teachers in Israel is the most pressing. Already there are fifteen teacher training institutions and several libraries. But the shortage of recognized professional books, especially those of comparatively recent date, is very acute."

CINNAMON BUNS

Measure into large bowl, 1 c. lukewarm water, 2 tsps. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 2 envelopes Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 min., THEN stir well. Scald 1 c. milk and stir in ½ c. granulated sugar, 1½ tsps. salt, 6 tbs. shortening; cool to lukewarm. Add to yeast mixture and stir in 2 well-beaten eggs. Stir in 3 c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 3 c. more once-sifted bread flour. Knead until smooth and elastic; place in greased bowl; brush top with melted butter or shortening. Cover and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. While dough is rising, combine 1½ c. brown sugar (lightly pressed down), 3 tsps. ground cinnamon, 1 c. washed and dried seedless raisins. Punch down dough and divide into 2 equal portions; form into smooth balls. Roll each piece into an oblong ¼" thick and 16" long; loosen dough. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Film Shows Value Of Interracial Camp

Children of school age surrounded by adults who are misinformed or prejudiced against other racial and religious groups almost invariably will mirror their elders' attitudes, but this need not keep youngsters from learning to know and understand others different from themselves through such experiences as mixed group camping. This is the point made by "To Live Together," a new documentary film previewed at the Johnny Victor Theatre, 40 West Forty-ninth Street, in New York.

The 16-millimeter picture, produced by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in cooperation with the Progressive Education Association of Chicago and the Chicago Commons Association, tells the story of youngsters at an interracial camp operated by the two Chicago settlements. The preview audience was made up of specialists from the fields of camping, education, social work, youth guidance, and psychiatry.

The plight of any child who differs outstandingly from the rest was made clear in a passage that showed white and Negro youngsters at the start of the camping period joining forces to badger an Italian refugee boy whose English was poor and who differed from the others in background, interests and mannerisms.

The groups of children at the camp came from two districts of Chicago—one a Negro section with very few white residents; the other a racially tense area, predominantly white, into which Negroes were beginning to move. As the youngsters lived, ate, worked and played together at the camp, frank and outspoken questions passed between the groups. Some of them had no easy answers.

Since the film is intended as a discussion-starter, much of its emphasis is on raising rather than answering questions. However, it shows clearly and with considerable emotional impact that interracial camping has value for all groups taking part. It is available for rental or purchase through Association Films, 347 Madison Avenue, or from B'nai B'rith.

and infantile paralysis drives and local hospital, community chest and veterans-aid projects, Mrs. Weisman reported.

Mrs. Arthur G. Laufman of Chicago, director of women's activities, told the 200 delegates, that "the expansion of women's organizations in the United States is a development of the increased responsibilities and service demanded of women during World War II."

Welcoming addresses were made by Mrs. Maurice Turner, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Abram Orlow, of Philadelphia; Judge Lenore D. Underwood, of San Francisco; and Mrs. Ida Cook Farber, of Brooklyn, all former presidents of Bnai Brith women.

REPORTS ISRAEL

thousands of Jews from Near East and Eastern European countries will continue to pour into the country during the next few months, Mr. Glasser stated. This large influx of immigration is posing difficult problems for Israel, principally the availability of supplies to absorb the new arrivals. The problem is further underscored, he added, by shortages in cement and other raw materials which have seriously hampered the building homes, industrial and agricultural facilities and hospitals.

Turning to the European scene, Mr. Glasser noted that the relief and rehabilitation program of the Joint Distribution Committee, a beneficiary agency of the UJA, is continually being reduced. This is offset, in part, by JDC assuming full responsibility for financing Malben, the welfare and rehabilitation program in Israel caring for "hard core" immigrants, an "extraordinary achievement as it cares for 3,500 persons at low cost and with high standards." Moreover, Mr. Glasser pointed out, Malben's rehabilitation activities with the blind, post-tuberculosis, and social cases is enabling these people to become self-supporting through productive work.

The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds is the national association of central Jewish community organizations serving 300 cities in the United States and Canada as their instrument in national Jewish affairs, and providing central services in budgeting, campaigning, community organization, and social planning. Member agencies of the CJFWF annually raise more than 90 per cent of all funds used for Jewish welfare purposes overseas and at home.

Mr. Gordon Mendly of Famous Studio, Toronto, has once again been honoured by Ontario Society of Photographers. A photograph taken by Mr. Mendly was selected for the Cover Page of the March 1951 issue of the Photo Topics, which is the official publication of the society. The photograph chosen is of a typical Canadian Jewish scholar.

Gordon Mendly, P.A. of A.

Spring was made for children, like laughter and warm sun. Why should a child fear these?

You would have to live where she lives to understand. You would have to know that your home can be entered and searched night or day, your father taken off to prison for as little reason as—that he received a letter postmarked "Israel."

Yes, there is a place in the world where that can be a reason for persecution. This little girl lives there. She saw her father taken away three years ago.

Now he has come out of prison. And he and all the Jews of that land, which shall be nameless here, have—miraculously—been given permission to leave. Of course, most of what they possess, save the clothes they wear, will have to remain behind. No matter.

What matters is that they must leave by May 31, this year—or never leave at all. For on that fateful day the exit doors will be slammed shut. Now do you understand how a little girl can be afraid of the Springtime? Understanding, will you help wipe the fear from her heart?

Will you help her and all the other thousands who pray for the ships and planes that can take them out of danger and oppression to Israel and freedom? Will you help them—as you helped 500,000 others in the last three years—build homes and a new life there?

You can—so easily—by contributing to the United Jewish Appeal. Do it now, quickly, while there is time. Give today. Give more than ever before.

Silence

The author of Biblical Proverbs admonishes that "there is a time to keep silent." What splendid advice! While speech is one of the glories of humans, yet it is equally important to be accomplished in the art of silence. In music, silence is as necessary as sound. Nature, too, has its silence, the silence of the night. What are the benefits of silence?

In the first place, silence is needed for its curative powers. Those who have regularly fled far "from the madding crowd" will attest to the value of silence in the maintenance of physical and mental health. Those who know not the regular practice of silence soon break under the push, rush and feverish excitement of complex, present-day living. The absence of silence in our lives is a contributing factor to the astonishing increase of mental diseases and what is termed heart failure.

Silence makes possible moral and spiritual growth. For the best way to advance is to stop sometimes and see where the road is leading. An artist steps and backs away from his canvas now and then to get a truer impression of what he has been doing. So men and women must pause to obtain what the sages termed it, "Cheshbon Ha-nefesh," an accounting of soul to improve individual living and thinking. That is why meditation has ever played such an important part in all religions. Quietism and silent meditation to this day form an integral part in worship, and the purpose of worship or "worthship" itself is to give us the opportunity to ask the question: whither are we tending? Silence is the soil out of which character grows.

Often what a wonderful indication of moral strength it is to be able to answer false accusations and slander by mere silence! The Jew of a bygone day practiced, for the most part, dignified silence in the face of all sorts of false charges. He answered anti-Semitism best not by apologizing for his Judaism but by living and practicing the faith of his fathers. What a pity that modern Jews indulge so much in telling the non-Jewish world about Yiddishkeit and fail for the most part to live the faith. Sometimes silence heals wounds best; not speech! Innocence does not need to explain everything.

To obtain visions and inspirations we must indulge in solitude. That is why prophets, seers, and scientists have so often withdrawn from society and sought out for the quiet of the mountain top and the stillness of laboratory and cave. To obtain mastery of a subject one must observe seasons of meditation. Constant association with the crowd makes for shallowness. To be creative one must learn to keep company with himself, for every great invention and noble thought has its roots in silence.

We need silence in order to keep alive within us the sense of wonder. What a pity it is that due to our mechanical living so many of us have permitted our sense of wonder to dull and even to die! For so many life has become a perfunctory schedule. We go through the daily routine of existence while the wonders of the world never arouse our spiritual appreciation. Wonder grows in stillness. In the presence of a master-musician who produces matchless harmony by touching strings, speech is sacrilege. The soul hushes in the presence of such a one.

We today live in an increasingly noisy world. The rattle of machinery, the shoutings of the crowd are ever with us. We need at times to escape from the outwardness of life. We need silence to give us the inner peace and calm. A full, rounded life must seek silence as well as society. We need both for wholesome living and striving. The great Carlyle, in rhapsodical manner, has beautifully expressed his appreciation of silence in the following words: "Speech is of Time, Silence is of Eternity. Bees will not work except in darkness; thought will not work except in silence. The great silent men! A country which has none or few of these is in a bad way. Like a forest that has no roots, which had all turned into leaves and boughs which must soon wither and be no forest."

THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

BY DR. ISRAEL GOLDSTEIN, OF NEW YORK, CHAIRMAN OF THE WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS WESTERN HEMISPHERE BRANCH

Exactly seventy years ago this week, a new tragic era in the long history of the Jewish people opened with the bloody Passover pogroms of Czarist Russia. This deliberately organised set of riots, in which violent death was dealt to Jews in towns and villages while Russian police stood idly by, formed the first chapter in the dreadful tale of modern, scientific, government-aided or government-tolerated anti-Semitism. On this Passover, the biblical three-score-and-ten years later, it would indeed be wonderful to be able to say that the awful story is over for good and all, that the Jewish people are at last secure everywhere, that anti-Semitism will never again be a tool of power politics. But unfortunately we cannot say so with any certainty.

As we prepare to celebrate the festival of freedom, tens of thousands of our brethren in the Middle East experience actual persecution or know insecurity and fear. An unrepentant, still poisonous, Germany rises again in Europe. Zionism is a crime in parts of Europe. Anti-Semitic propaganda continues to be spread in Latin America. The small and isolated Jewish community of Australia faces the threat of a flood of Naziphile German immigration capable of changing the very character of democratic Australia.

At least, however, we are not powerless today. The impotence of 1881, when Jews of Russia could not change their fate, has given way to a degree of strength. Out of the agony of this era of persecution has arisen the State of Israel, a home, a refuge and an inspiration. From the experience of this era, too, we are beginning to learn that unity is essential to strength and to freedom. Today, as for the past fifteen years, the alert and unified World Jewish Congress strives to protect Jewish rights wherever they are threatened. World Jewish Congress estimates show that four million of our co-religionists, or one third of the Jewish people of the world, are living in actual or potential danger areas.

The basic contribution of the World Jewish Congress to the health of world Jewry in these days of international tension has been its instant readiness to act wherever danger arises or injustice appears. In recent months it has intervened to ease the plight of Jews in Moslem lands. It has made progress at the United Nations in its efforts to end statelessness. It has warned again and again against the threat of a revived Germany. It has striven to protect the rights of Jews and other minorities in Latin America.

Thus, as the ancient festival of Jewish liberty is commemorated once again, the never-ending battle for freedom continues. The World Jewish Congress and its affiliates in sixty-four countries renew their pledge to the principle that the price of liberty is constant vigilance.

mountain lake, he fell overboard from a boat, but suffered no ill effect. Active until five weeks ago, he had enjoyed going to the theatre. He took great pleasure also in his great-grandchildren.

Mr. Levy received a letter of congratulation from President Franklin D. Roosevelt on his ninetieth birthday, and felicitations from President Truman on his 100th birthday. He ascribed his longevity to his careful and prudent life and to his "not worrying." Until almost the end of his long life, he smoked two or three cigars a day and took a nip in the evening.

Surviving are a son, Royal Lowy; a daughter, Mrs. Carrie Siegel; four grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Men and women nearing retirement age should prepare for their leisure well ahead of time. The sudden change from a busy life to an idle one has often proved too great a change and has caused ill health. Plan hobbies or some occupation that will take up a large part of your time.
